

Hong Kong Traditional Food Festival

Written by Hilary Yip (3C 30)

We celebrate Hong Kong Traditional Food Festival on 7th December. Citizens in Hong Kong and travellers celebrate this festival in spacious Victoria Park. It is a huge place which can hold many people together for celebration. During this festival, we can enjoy three activities. We can taste Hong Kong traditional food, such as curry fish balls and egg waffles. Foodies can teach citizens how to cook traditional food of Hong Kong. Moreover, we can invite foodies to tell the origin, old stories and history of our traditional food.

Hong Kong Traditional Food Festival is special. First, we can eat egg tarts, egg puffs, pineapple buns and curry fish balls because they are the well-known traditional food of Hong Kong. Second, we decorate Victoria Park with brown and yellow Hong Kong traditional food flags and banners because most of the traditional food is brown and yellow in colour. Finally, we can wear chef's uniform because we cook the traditional food together in Victoria Park.

We celebrate this festival because we can promote unity and national identity. We also want the travellers to know more about the traditional food of Hong Kong. We are all over the moon when celebrating this festival.
